North Carolina Local Businesses Begin to Safely Reopen

Spectrum News (May 2020) – Bassam Safi of Our Town America shares how local businesses in North Carolina are preparing to reopen since the start of the Coronavirus pandemic. Local businesses have been largely impacted by the Coronavirus, and need support now more than ever.

Safi's partnered local businesses continue to take precautions in order to ensure employees and consumers are safe. Triangle Family Dentistry of North Carolina, for example, are "going above and beyond all ADA and CDC guidelines and are taking extreme measures to ensure the safety of their employees as well as their patients" according to Safi. Safi encourages consumers to consider shopping at local businesses whenever safe and possible.

Our Town America wants small business owners, as well as consumers, impacted by the Coronavirus to know they aren't in this alone
